a hearing to Mr.
York, who had been examined on the 12th of that month before the committee on manufactures.

A long debate followed between Breckinridge, Mills and McComas, in which Breckinridge and Mills denied the charge that certain parties had been granted a hearing before the ways and means committee and others refused.

On motion of Mills the duty on molasses testing not above 56 degrees was fixed at 2½ cents per gallon.

Cannon of Illinois offered an amendment substituting for the sugar schedule as it originally appeared in the Mills bill. He intimated that the change had been brought about by the fact that Havemeyer had supported Cleveland.

Reed inquired if the chairman of the committee would not explain the reason why the change had been made.

Mills retorted by inquiring who it was then that in former congresses the gen-

Cannon replied whether two wrongs made a right.

Mills wanted to know why it was that the gentleman had stood by Havemeyer and the sugar trust and all other trusts.

Reed said here was a direct charge made against the committee that after the interview with Havemeyer they had the sugar schedule changed in the interest of the most prominent of these trusts which they denounced so much, and instead of explaining the reason which induced the chairman of the committee gives the house a general declaration of how good he was and how bad the republicans were. It seemed the bill had been made up in the interest of avowedly favorite people, and for the purpose of effecting the success of certain democrats. This was not a business way to control the affairs of the country, and the people would stamp it with the signal of disapproval.

Cannon's amendment was rejected.

Weber of New York offered an amendment providing that no drawbacks shall be allowed on sugar exported from the United States. He charged that the amended bill was in the interest of the sugar trust of the country.

Weber's amendment being rejected, he offered another providing drawbacks to be paid only upon polariscopic tests, saying that this was the last resort of the sugar trust, and gentlemen on the other side have now an opportunity to free themselves from the suspicion which would be certain if they voted down his proposition.

Mills replied that treasury officials already had authority to make polariscopic tests. After further debate the amendment was rejected.

This concluded consideration of the sugar clauses. The next paragraph, relating to tobacco, was left open for further action.

Noonan of New York moved to strike out the cotton provision.

Pending a vote the house adjourned.

Stock Markets.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Money on call easy, 1@1½; prime paper, 3½ to 6. The stock market to-day displayed but little improvement over that of last week, and while there was some animation in early trading, it soon dropped back into the usual dull and listless state. Fluctuations were for the most part confined to the same narrow limits with the same lack of significance. Only a few of the leading stocks were traded in, over a million of shares per day, and all changes are generally for small fractions only. Governments dull and steady.

Damaging Evidence.

LOUISVILLE, KY., July 9.—Judge A. M. Pulliam, who killed Jas. Miller, a wealthy farmer, at Hardinsburg Friday, was sent to jail after it had been learned that Pulliam submitted to Miller for signature the statement that Miller had been criminally intimate with Mrs. Pulliam and would pay Pulliam $5,000. The statement was in Pulliam's writing. Below were the words, in the same hand, "I give you five minutes to consider this. You may sign or die." The feeling is very bitter against Pulliam, and there is some talk of violence. Pulliam's past record is bad. He was a saloon keeper at Cloverport a number of years ago, and his place was the resort of women of questionable repute. Pulliam's election as county judge was due to a question against the badly-enforced local option law. His only competitor was a local optionist.

Grain Statistics.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 9.—The annual report of the San Francisco exchange gives the following amount of flour and grain remaining in the state of California July 1st, 1888: Flour, 72,000 barrels; wheat, 3,882,000 centals; barley, 2,063,000 centals; oats, 62,000 centals. This is a considerable increase over the amount on hand July 1st, 1887, which was: Flour, 50,000; wheat, 2,720,000 centals; barley, 798,500 centals; oats, 42,000 centals.

NEW YORK, July 9.—Supply of grain July 7, as compiled by the produce exchange: Wheat, 23,931,727 bushels; corn, 10,170,395 bushels; oats, 4,419,609 bushels; rye, 173,581 bushels; barley, 151,113 bushels.

Presidential Nominations.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The president to-day sent to the senate the nomination of Col. Thos. L. Casey, corps of engineers, to be chief of engineers with the rank of brigadier general. The president also nominated Elliott Sandford, of New York, to be chief justice of the supreme court of Utah; John W. Judd, of Tennessee, to be associate judge of the supreme court of Utah; Hugh W. Weir, of Pennsylvania, to be chief justice and Charles H. Berrit, of Minnesota, to be associate justice of the supreme court of Idaho; Roderick Ross, of Dakota, to be associate justice of the supreme court of Dakota; John H. Keatley, of Iowa, to be United States judge for the district of Alaska.

A Narrow Escape.

DARMSTADT, July 9.—As Prince Alexander of Battenburg, late ruler of Bulgaria, was driving from Heidelberg into Stettbach valley yesterday, his horses shied and the carriage was hurled from the road down the side of the mountain. Prince Alexander was thrown out and fell a distance of forty feet, when he grasped some shrubs and by them was caped with slight injuries. The horses were terribly mangled and killed and the carriage dashed to pieces.

Harrison's Visitors.

INDIANAPOLIS, June 9.—A delegation of ladies and gentlemen from Benton Harbor, Mich., called on General Harrison to-day. They were presented by Colonel Ward, who was a Michigan delegate to the Chicago convention. The delegation was cordially received by General Harrison, who made a short speech in which he referred to the active part Michigan had taken in the many achievements of the republican party.

General Sheridan at Nonquitt.

NONQUITT HOUSE, NONQUITT, MASS., July 8.—The Swatara came to anchor off this village at 2 o'clock this afternoon after a run of seven hours from New London. About two hours afterward General Sheridan was brought ashore without any apparent discomfort, and is now in his own cottage. He was somewhat restless last night, and consequently has been rather nervous to-day. Nevertheless his circulation continues good and his general condition quite as favorable as when he left the capes of Delaware.

NONQUITT, MASS., July 9.—The day passed very quietly at Nonquitt, and owing to rain and easterly winds but few visitors have been to the place. Interest in the welfare of General Sheridan continues unabated, and many inquiries have been made concerning his condition.

NONQUITT, July 9, Dr. O. Reily, who was with the general during the voyage from Washington, left Nonquitt for the capital to-day on account of business engagement, and his place has been taken by Dr. Washington Matthews. The following bulletin has been issued by the attending physician this evening:

9 p. m.—Notwithstanding the apparent fatigue of General Sheridan's disembarkation from the Swatara he had a tolerably fair night, being slightly restless at times. His condition to-day has been as satisfactory as could be expected. His pulse has been good, his respiration better and his appetite has increased.

Heavy Rains and Washouts.

PITTSBURG, July 9.—Continuous rainfall for the past twenty-four hours has resulted in numerous washouts on railroads [illegible] badly delayed to-night, but so far as known no serious accidents have occurred.

PITTSBURG, July 9.—A Uniontown, Pa., special says, Red Stone creek has broken its bounds and submerged all the lowlands of the town, and hundreds of people are standing on bridges watching the angry waters sweep by. Men are carrying the women out of their houses to higher ground, and several feet of water is standing in the houses.

At Delft the whole place is submerged and trains are running through several feet of water, while the rising water threatens to raise the houses from their foundations.

At Brownfield the yard tracks are washed out and twenty feet of water is standing in a cut of the B. and O. railroad. Two railroad bridges from above town have been carried away and lodged against the trestle in Uniontown.

The Uniontown express is still lying here, being unable to proceed further south for washouts. The rain is still pouring down but it is thought the worst is past. The rain will do much damage to growing crops, especially corn, which is badly washed out in many places.

At Washington there was a terrible rain storm, which flooded cellars and yards.

The B. and O. railroad bridge at Tredelphia was carried off by high water during the storm.

Moore and Mrs. Norton Located.

ST. LOUIS, July 9.—A dispatch was received this morning by Mr. Thornton, an intimate friend of Henry W. Moore, dated Kansas City, and signed Henry W. Mayson, asking him to forward a certain trunk to Henry W. Mayson, Copeland house, Topeka, Kas. This revealed to Thornton the whereabouts of Moore and the wife of Col. Norton. Thornton made the matter known to the proper authorities, and Norton immediately swore out a warrant for the arrest of Moore, charging him with grand larceny in stealing $15,000 in money and about $500 worth of diamond jewelry. Chief of Police Huebler then telegraphed the chief of police at Topeka to arrest Moore. Judge Laflin, Norton's attorney, goes to Topeka, where he will replevin the property.

ST. LOUIS, July 9.—A dispatch from Topeka says Moore under his alias of W. H. Mason was arrested at the Copeland hotel between 3 and 4 o'clock this afternoon. The dispatch says Mrs. Norton was also arrested, but as Norton refused to make a charge against her or to have a warrant issued for her the report of her arrest must be a mistake. She is said to have taken the arrest of Moore very hard, having broken completely down and refused to be comforted. Moore was [illegible] jail but both he and Mrs. Norton will be guarded in their room at the hotel till an officer arrives from St. Louis. Mrs. Caswell, an old friend of Norton's, accompanied Judge Laughton to Topeka to-night and will use all the influence she can to induce Mrs. Norton to return to this city or at least attempt to get her out of the clutches of Moore. Norton says he is satisfied that she has had spells of weak-mindedness since the death of her child, about two years ago, and that this had much to do with her fall.

The Post-Dispatch this afternoon prints a review of developments in the sad case, and gives several of Moore's intimates a most scathing going over for the part they took in the affair, charging at least one of them with not only aiding to debauch the wife, but to ruin if not rob the husband. In an interview with Moore at Topeka this afternoon he said he had stopped at that place because he did not think anybody there knew him, and that he intended to start west at noon to-morrow unless he was arrested before that time. He professed indignation at the false statements which, he said, had been put in circulation about the affair, and the idea he and Mrs. Norton had brought $40,000 from St. Louis [illegible] He pointed to a small [illegible] Wednesday's Times.

St. Louis, July 9.—The correspondent of the Republican at Topeka has furnished the paper with the following interesting details:

Henry W. Moore, [illegible] of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, and Mrs. Nellie M. Norton arrived here this afternoon at 3:30 [illegible] the Copeland hotel this city, where they [illegible] registered as W. H. Mason and wife. They [illegible] of Pueblo, Colorado, [illegible] from the chief of St. Louis direct [illegible] they [illegible] on a charge of grand larceny. As the officers [illegible] the assumed name under which Moore was [illegible] ham. They were informed of his whereabouts, however, by the correspondent of the Republic, who was sent by Detective Moore. They were, in a room at the Copeland hotel, charged and a deputy arrived with a warrant. The officers were admitted to the room and before conversation had been had and without questioning them as to their identity warrants were read to them charging them with grand larceny.

"You are now in my custody," said the officer, "and you must accompany me to the county jail, where we will take good care of you until [illegible] from St. Louis arrive."

No sooner had the warrant been read than Mrs. Norton broke into tears and cried bitterly. Moore placed his arm about her and tried to console her, but she continued to sob for several moments.

Moore then appealed to the officer not to take them to jail, and said, "It will break her heart."

The chief [illegible] go, but finally consented [illegible] under surveillance of an officer. This had the effect of quieting Mrs. Norton. Then she began to indicate the cause of their arrest for grand larceny.

"All we took," she said, "was $4,000, which was my own money, and my jewelry. I do not see what Mr. Norton expects to make out of this. I would have gone into his house Friday night, but he threatened my life. I do not want to die yet. He said he would kill me. Friends came out of the house and said he was flourishing a butcher knife."

"I tell you what I would like to do," said Moore, "I would like to go right back to St. Louis and face whatever music there is. We can prove that no money is stolen."

"But he will kill me," said Mrs. Norton.

Moore then inquired where he could employ a good attorney. The names of several were mentioned, and as Moore's request an officer was at once dispatched for Judge Henry Keller, who soon arrived and consulted privately with the runaways. Moore did not have so much to say about the escapade as Mrs. Norton. When the officer inquired what led to the elopement, he said he had nothing to say at this time. He was somewhat nervous, and acted like a man who had either been foiled in a plot or regretted what he had done, and lost heart to carry it to a consummation. He said the charges against him and Mrs. Norton [illegible] brought nothing belonging to others away with them. They had not $10,000. He wished they had $10,000. Since he came here he and his companion had gone about the city much the same as any strangers would, promenading the public streets and riding on street cars. They had not tried to conceal their identity. They came over the Wabash direct from St. Louis to Kansas City and thence here. He said they had intended to go west to-morrow at noon, but would not say what their destination was. As to the story that they had started to Australia he laughed and intimated that Topeka would not be a very convenient place to take passage from. He said it was a sad affair, but since they are into it they will have to make the most of it.

"No man knows what he will do for the woman he loves," he observed.

Mrs. Norton moved uneasily about the room, at first sitting in a chair, then going to a bed where she fondled with a lot of lace, gloves, a fan and other trinkets. She appeared to be sad and half sorry she had committed the abduction. Indeed the conduct of both parties warranted the belief that they regretted their departure from St. Louis, although Moore tried to appear jolly and wanted to leave the impression that he was undisturbed and that love, not he, is to blame. He spoke bitterly of the St. Louis papers, and he said had read their idiotic fiction with pitying delight. The stories about his debts in St. Louis worried him considerably, and he was more anxious that the charges relating to them should be denied, first of all. As to the consequences of what they had done he was resigned.

The Government Opposes Appointment of a Committee.

Mandeville's Death in Tullamore Prison Brought Up.

O'Brien Charges that He was Brutally Murdered.

Parnell and the Times.

LONDON, July 9.—Parnell has decided to ask that a parliamentary committee be appointed to inquire into the charge made by the Times against himself and other leaders of the national party.

In the house of commons to-day Sir Wilfred Lawson, home ruler, asked whether the government would grant the appointment of a committee of the house to inquire into the charges. In reply the Right Hon. W. H. Smith, government leader, said that the house was incompetent to inquire into the charges. A proper inquiry, he declared, could be obtained through the proper tribunals.

Parnell later gave notice to the house that on Thursday he would submit a motion for the appointment of a committee [illegible] of the letter published by the Times in its articles on "Parnellism and Crime," in which he and other nationalist members were charged with serious crimes. He will ask the government to appoint a day to discuss the subject and give him an opportunity to repel the foul and unfounded charges made against him by Attorney General Webster in the trial of the suit of O'Donnell against the Times. Parnell's remarks were greeted with loud cheers from the Irish benches.

LONDON, July 9.—W. H. Smith stated in the commons to-night that the government will decline to give a day for discussion of Mr. Parnell's motion to appoint a committee to inquire into the charges made by the Times against leaders of the national party and the authenticity of the letters supporting those charges. Parnellites intend therefore to raise the debate on a motion to adjourn.

Stanhope will move in the supply bill reduction of Webster's salary as attorney general.

Mandeville's Death.

LONDON, July 9.—In announcing the death of Mandeville, O'Brien declared in the commons to-day that Mandeville had been murdered by brutal treatment in Tullamore prison. He was kept many days in a diet of bread and water, and would have died of starvation but for the compassion of the officials in giving him small comfortable food. He never recovered from the effects of his imprisonment. Timothy Healy writes that Mandeville died for the cause of Ireland, and that he was killed by rigorous treatment in prison.

In the commons O'Brien asked Balfour if any official information had been received in regard to the death of Mandeville, and whether the government would take any measures to secure adequate inquiry into the cause of his death. Balfour replied that the existing system of law was sufficient to insure proper inquiry if any were necessary. O'Brien censured the reply as unmeaning and evasive, and stated that he would renew the question on Thursday if he found the government was not making searching inquiry into the matter, and would challenge the opinion of the house in regard to it.

Efforts for Brooks.

ST. LOUIS, July 9.—To-day was the time set apart by Governor Moorehouse to hear argument by the attorneys of Hugh M. Brooks alias Maxwell, for commutation of sentence for the murder of Prolier, but the governor had received such a number of appeals and petitions and letters from all parts of the state which he thought the attorneys ought to examine before beginning their arguments, that he postponed the arguments until to-morrow. Mrs. Brooks and her daughter had an interview with the governor and made an earnest appeal to him to save their son and brother from the gallows. He listened to them attentively, and said he would give the case the benefit of his very best judgment, and invited them to be present at the hearing to-morrow. He would also be glad to hear anything further which they might desire to present to him.

Another Burlington Arrest.

CHICAGO, July 9.—Another arrest was made to-day in connection with the Burlington [illegible] The United States marshal arrested George Gooding, a striking engineer, at Aurora, Ills. Gooding had worked for the Burlington road for seventeen years, and is highly respected by the citizens of Aurora. He was brought to Chicago this morning and questioned at length by the marshal and C. B. & Q. attorneys. He was taken before United States Commissioner Hoyne and held in $5,000 bail on a charge of aiding in the transportation of high explosives contrary to the federal laws. Being unable to secure bondsmen he went to jail. Gooding declares his innocence of complicity in any plot. Marshal Marsh said this arrest completed the present case, and no more warrants are out.

A Cloud-burst at Kansas City.

KANSAS CITY, July 9.—The most disastrous storm that has visited Kansas City for years raged during last night until 12 o'clock. During the height of the storm Elizabeth street, for seven blocks, became a turbulent river, which flooded all the houses to a depth of two feet, and at Twenty-third and Vine the fifteen-foot culvert was inadequate to carry the immense volume of water, which backed up, carrying away two houses, the inmates of which were only rescued with great difficulty, and those who saw the storm say that it was undoubtedly a cloud-burst. Reports of death and destruction are numerous, but at this hour no fatalities have been verified. It is said a family of four, named Williams, were washed away and drowned. The loss will aggregate many thousand dollars.

REPUBLICAN NATIONAL TICKET.

FOR PRESIDENT,
BENJAMIN HARRISON,
Of Indiana.

FOR VICE PRESIDENT,
LEVI P. MORTON,
Of New York.

There seems to be a determined effort on the part of the democratic party to have the laboring men think that Harrison is not their friend. Chief Arthur, of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, pays a high tribute to Harrison, and says: "I know his friendly attitude towards organized labor, and his nomination is a strong one, for his record contains nothing to prevent any republican vote from coming to him."

George William Curtis, in his splendid oration at Gettysburg, said: "It is not enough that the national election is fair, it must be the national conviction that it is fair." It is a little difficult to understand how Mr. Curtis can with this sentiment support Mr. Cleveland, when he knows that three fourths of the electors who voted for Mr. Cleveland were not fairly elected, in the estimation of at least one-half the people of this country.

Mr. Harrison is said to be a very cold man. His speeches have warmth in it. Jim Blackburn in 1872, with Voorhees, who was professing to be the soldiers' friend, he used this language:

"The man who lived through the war of the rebellion and did not make some sacrifice for the success of the union armies, who did not say one brave word or do one brave thing when, with fire and bleeding breast, our soldiers looked into the face of hell for their country, can never be confidenced as the soldiers' friend."

According to Mr. Cannon, we received last year some sixty millions from the tax on sugar. Last year our own production was so small that the tax raised the price of the product in this country only six millions of dollars, or, in other words, it cost us sixty millions to obtain sixty millions of protection. His proposed amendment carries out the principle of American protection, by giving a bounty to each sugar producer equal to the protection, or two cents a pound. By this means we shall wipe out sixty millions of income and increase our liabilities six millions more, for bounty, or, in other words, reduce our surplus sixty-six millions. This is about all that it is safe to reduce at the present time, and will give all the relief that is needed. It will make more than twice the reduction of the surplus that the repeal of the tax on tobacco would. Besides, it will reduce about thirty per cent the cost of sugar, which is a necessary article of food for every man, woman and child, instead of making an inappreciable reduction in the cost of a luxury which is only used by men. But congress yesterday, in its inscrutable wisdom, voted down Cannon's amendment.

Fitz-Mac, in the Denver World, speaking of the republican platform, says: "It is the worst written paper that we ever remember to have seen exposed to the public. But its faults end with its clumsy rhetoric." It then goes on to say: "Its principles are as pure as refined gold and so clear, so strong, so effulgent that even the cloudy and bungling rhetoric in which they are invested cannot obscure their splendid light of truth." He then goes on to say this:

"We know a very intelligent republican paper [illegible] 'free whiskey' plank in the platform. There is no free whiskey plank in the platform at all, and the editor of the paper alluded to is too intelligent to get any such notion from reading the platform. He has undoubtedly imbibed it from some other source—some prohibition sheet."

Whether this paper is alluded to or not, it is one of the papers that has complained of the free whiskey plank. This opinion could not come from the prohibitionists for the prohibitionists are in favor of the same plank, but it came from the platform itself. The republican platform declares in favor of the needed reduction of the national revenue by the repeal of the taxes on tobacco and spirits used in the arts and for mechanical purposes. It says: "If there shall still remain a larger revenue than is requisite for the wants of the government we favor the entire repeal of the internal taxes, rather than the surrender of any part of our protective system." It is perfectly evident that the repeal of the internal revenue tax on tobacco and spirits used in the arts will not wipe out the surplus. It is evident that there must be some further reduction of the income of the government. The men who drew the platform evidently meant that the reduction should come by the abolition of the whiskey tax, rather than the abolition of the tax on a necessity like sugar. If the editor of the World is conversant with the discussions of the last six years on the tariff question, he will know that the extreme protectionists of the Kelley-McKinley stripe [illegible] in favor of the abolition of the whiskey tax. An effort was made to [illegible] in the republican party for such a measure at that it failed. At that time Mr. Harrison declared himself against such a measure. If any one is able to interpret this platform it is certainly Judge Kelley who is authority on the question it expresses. Last Saturday there was quite a sharp discussion on the interpretation of the platform between Judge Kelley and Representative Cannon, republican, of Illinois. [illegible] sugar and of the [illegible] bounty to sugar raisers equal to the protection now received from the tariff. Judge Kelley said that Cannon did not stand on the platform which declares against the repeal of the tax on whiskey to the surrender of any part of our protective system, of which system it is a part. He was accused of being for free whiskey and free trade and the following ensued:

Mr. KELLEY—I do not wish to be misunderstood by the friends of the protective system. I do not wish to be misunderstood by the friends of the protective system. I do not wish to be misunderstood by the friends of the protective system.

The excursionists leave to-day on the noon train for Salt Lake. They will make a stop there and proceed to San Francisco. After the convention about two weeks will be spent in California, in the party will go to Portland, thence to Yellowstone park, and home by way of St. Paul.

In conversation with a reporter yesterday morning, Mr. Howard expressed his satisfaction with the treatment received at the hands of the railroad companies throughout the trip. The Union Pacific officials, in particular, did everything in their power to add to the comfort and convenience of the excursionists, by gave the party a special train in order for a clear track between Omaha and Denver. The special left this three hours after the regular overland flyer, and arrived in Denver two hours in advance of it, making an average speed of more than fifty miles an hour including eight stops. Every possible attention that would add to the comfort of the party was given them, and they all speak in the highest terms of the company. The D. & R. A substantial stone levee has been built along the Fountain fronting Castle Garden.

Mr. Al. McCleary, a nephew of Mr. A. L. Jacobs, has arrived from Medicine Lodge, Kansas, and will remain during the summer.

Dr. Ammerman was called to Glen Eyrie Saturday night to attend Mr. M. Guthrie, whose arm had been dislocated by an accident.

The executive committees of the two clubs will hold a conference some time this week to take steps toward securing quarters to be used jointly during the campaign, the time to be divided between the clubs. In our issue of Sunday morning we stated that Superintendent Berrey had made the regular annual apportionment of the general school fund among the various school districts in the county. It should have been stated that the apportionment is made quarterly instead of annually.

Charles Meyer, who formerly conducted a bakery at Colorado City, has been bound over to the district court in the sum of $1500 bail, on the charge of starting the conflagration which nearly destroyed the town of El Moro. Yesterday County Superintendent of Schools Berrey received the notice of the regular semi-annual apportionment for this county of the state school fund. This apportionment is made in July and January. The amounts given to this county this year are $2,129.39 in January, and $3,112.50 in July. Ranchmen in the northeastern portion of the county are greatly pleased that the board of trade has taken up the matter of a new county road running from this city to Eastonville. Many of them, however, think that the present road is as direct as it could be made, but it is badly in need of repair. There is only one heavy pull on the road which they claim can be removed if sufficient grading is done. There seems to be a decided feeling that directly east with a branch running to Peyton, a ranchman stated yesterday that there had been more travel to Granger and Eastonville this year than all the previous ten years.

The Colorado Springs base ball club accompanied by about seventy five of their friends and admirers went to Pueblo on Sunday afternoon and played the Pastimes of that place. The boys were determined to win to avenge defeat of the previous Sunday and played a winning game from the start. The Pueblo pitcher was unmercifully batted and ran the bases with surprising ease. The score of the game was: Pastimes 9, Colorado Springs 21.

Merchants who publish silly advertisements should ponder on this profitably.

Is it better to deal with Clothiers who claim everything and show very little, or to patronize a house that professes only what it can perform?

We have a great stock of things that men and boys wear. Our Clothing carefully selected and well made. Choose your apparel HERE, because we can fit you, and after you once learn the merits of our goods we believe you will continue to use them.
